

Terms & Conditions

By using this web site, you acknowledge that you have read and understood these terms and conditions.

This site is provided “as is” and may be changed at any time. EDI does not guarantee that the content or information on this site is correct, complete, error free or current as information is constantly changing and the site is not updated real time.

EDI assumes no responsibility for updating this site except at our sole discretion. As such, it is your responsibility to verify accuracy of information published here before making any decision related to any matters described in this site.

EDI makes no warranties or other commitments to any non EDI sites or third party resources that are referenced or accessible from this site.

All content is the property of Electronic Devices, Inc. Information from this site may be copied or downloaded solely for your personal, non commercial use.

In no event will EDI accept liability to any party for any damages of any type related to or arising from use of this site.